

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus for refining a glass melting with a vacuum generated above a surface of a glass flux. Refinement is improved because the glass flux is conducted sequentially through several vacuum chambers, and the pressure in the successive vacuum chambers is reduced more and more relative the atmospheric pressure.